Missionary in Asia with Unidos en Misión

“I’ve been sent by Unidos en Mision Mexico. My ministry consists of translating the Word into the local language of a remote indigenous group in Asia. Part of this involves traveling between 10-14 hours to a community where I share with them, learn and analyze their language, and build relationships with the local people.

This year has had its challenges, but I have also enjoyed our Father's goodness.

One of the greatest miracles was getting the legal permission to continue living in this country and learning the national language at the university, after much paperwork and uncertainty.

In my ministry, it has been wonderful to see how a friend has begun to understand the Word and memorize parts of it, delving deeper into it. Together we work to ensure that the message that will reach her people is faithful, clear, and meaningful to the community that speaks this language.

Being part of the process of seeing someone grow in God who does not yet have the Word in her own language or a community of faith has been an immense gift.

Testimonies

As workers in this country that constantly face uncertainty and change, we have seen God's love and care. Being in this place has taught me that our Father can use us not only in big projects, but also in daily life, in the day-to-day tasks.

I have learned that in the midst of every challenge, I must remain available, adaptable, flexible, and teachable. Thank you for interceding for me.”

Cielo Aguilar

Medical student and participant on Unidos' short-term missions trip to Peru

"God has been confirming my calling to missions for several years. This year's short-term missions trip (STM) to Peru with Unidos en Misión helped me reflect on how to use my studies to serve Him. Choosing where to serve long-term is not easy nor is it something I should decide on my own. I am learning to depend on God to take the next steps in my life.

During the STM, we served at a shelter for cancer patients near a local hospital in Lima, mainly for children and senior citizens who come from remote areas of the country. We shared the Gospel through a puppet show, and it was beautiful to see the smiles on their faces. Even a child who was very affected by chemotherapy sang and danced a song called "El amor de Dios" (The Love of God) with me! It was a moment that filled my heart.

God taught me through the STM that everything I do is not for my own recognition, but so that others may see Christ. Amidst the uncertainties of an STM, including how to raise the needed financial support, what matters is your willingness to serve the Lord, that you have a heart open to learn what He wants to teach you."

Bob Waguespack

President of the Unidos en
Misión Advisory Council

“Every Christian leader and organization needs people outside the ministry who can see with unbiased lenses. The Unidos en Misión Advisory Council has had the privilege of being those ‘unbiased lenses’ while being very interested in the kingdom of God and Unidos’ participation in its expansion. Our focus has been on providing counsel to the leadership team towards that end.

I have had the privilege of participating in this role since the fall of 2023 alongside a group of Christians with different careers and ministry experiences who are able to advise the directors from outside the ministry of Unidos. With God's guidance and the efforts of the directors, staff, and the Advisory Council working together, Unidos en Misión Mexico will play a role in the development of the Mexican missionary movement for the glory and honor of God.”

Martha Pech

Promoter in Merida
for Unidos en Misión

“I became involved as a promoter for Unidos en Misión because of my friendship with a staff member who shared with me the vision of reaching more people with the Gospel. This experience with Unidos en Misión has been rewarding because I am convinced that I am serving God, even though the work has been challenging at times.

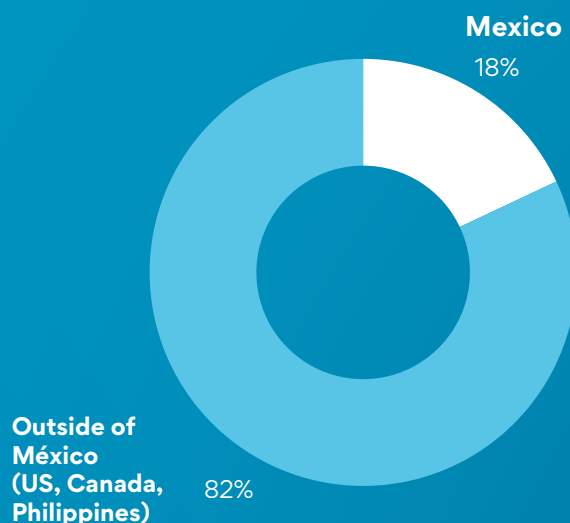

This year, I had the honor of promoting the ministry at the Corazón por las Naciones (Heart for the Nations) event in Mérida, where God surprised me by showing me how several churches joyfully welcomed Unidos, listened to the vision, and decided to get involved in missions. In missions, we need the collaboration of more believers to get involved in different areas and work as a team to keep the Gospel moving forward.”
